Proteaceae are among the oldest families of flowers on Earth, dating back 200 million years. Greek legend tells us they were named after Proteus, the son of Poseidon, a sea god who had the power to know all things past, present, and future. Proteus was defiant and to deter those seeking his insights, he would change his shape. Protea was named after him because it presents itself in an astounding variety of shapes, sizes, hues, and textures to make up more than 1,400 varieties. With its mythological associations to change and transformation, it's not surprising that in the language of flowers, Protea symbolizes diversity and courage.
